spectrin and an α II SBDP generated from proteolytic cleavage of α II spectrin by at least one protease selected from the group consisting of caspase-3 and calpain; and (c) printed instructions for reacting the agent with the biological sample or a portion of the biological sample to detect the presence or amount of the at least one marker in the biological sample.

In the kit, the marker(s) being assessed can be one or more of α II spectrin, SBDP150i, SBDP150, SBDP145, and SBDP120. The agent can be one that does not specifically at least one of α II spectrin, SBDP150i, SBDP150, SBDP145, and SBDP120; or one that specifically binds only one of α II spectrin, SBDP150i, SBDP150, SBDP145, and SBDP120. The kit can also include a detectable label such as one conjugated to the agent, or one conjugated to a substance that specifically binds to the agent.

As used herein, "bind," "binds," or "interacts with" means that one molecule recognizes and adheres to a particular second molecule in a sample, but does not substantially recognize or adhere to other structurally unrelated molecules in the sample. Generally, a first molecule that "specifically binds" a second molecule has a binding affinity greater than about 10^5 to 10^6 moles/liter for that second molecule.

By reference to an "agent that specifically binds" another molecule is meant any substance that binds the other molecule, and displays no substantial binding to other naturally occurring proteins other than those sharing the same antigenic determinants as other molecule. Examples of such agents include antibodies and aptamers.

The term "antibody" includes polyclonal and monoclonal antibodies as well as antibody fragments or portions of immunoglobulin molecules that can specifically bind the same antigen as the intact antibody molecule.

As used herein, a "detectable label" is meant any substance that can be detected either directly or indirectly.

By the phrase "conjugated to" is meant covalently or non-covalently bonded to or otherwise physically associated with.

Unless otherwise defined, all technical terms used herein have the same meaning as commonly understood by one of ordinary skill in the art to which this invention belongs. Although methods and materials similar or equivalent to those described herein can be used in the practice or testing of the present invention,
